Eric,

I had this domain before the product Lexapro.com <<http://lexapro.com>> even existed. I chose to take down the site later and put it up on a parked.com <<http://parked.com>> account. They choose what ads show up on the site. I have also had recent interest from other companies, some offshore to purchase the domain from me.

I do, however, understand your situation and I'm willing to sell you the domain for $10,000.

AFFIDAVIT OF SIGMUND SOLARES

STATE OF FLORIDA)
:) ss:
COUNTY OF HILLSBOROUGH)

I, SIGMUND SOLARES, affirm the following facts under penalty of perjury:

1. I am the Chief Executive Officer of a company called Parked.com, LLC ("Parked"). Parked is an on-line advertising business that services owners of domain names.
2. In particular, once a domain name owner creates an account with Parked, he can place domain names in our system. Parked will either choose keywords for the customer or the customer can choose a primary keyword and the Parked system will choose related key words. Parked will then send these results to the major search engines.
3. Various advertisers bid on keywords with the search engine companies and the advertisers are ranked based on the highest bidder and the click through rate for the ad.

4. Based on the results of the bidding process, Parked works with the search engine companies to place relevant advertising on the web site associated with the domain name. Internet user view the related advertising and frequently click on the advertising which is placed on the domain name. The domain name owner obtains revenue from clicks that are verified as legitimate clicks by the search engine. Internet sites like "lexipro.com" are referred to as "pay-per-click" sites.

5. On May 23, 2007, Mr. Leif Nissen signed up for an account at Parked and added the domain name "lexipro.com" to the system. Attached as Exhibit A is a true and correct copy of Ms. Nissen's registration information.

6. On or about May 23, 2007, the account holder for lexipro.com logged on the account and set the domain name "lexipro.com" to the keyword "depression." A true and correct copy of a "screen capture" from the customer account page for "lexipro.com" is attached hereto as Exhibit B.

7. As a result of setting the domain name to the keyword "depression" the Parked.com system automatically determined that the related keywords should include: "Depression, Lexapro, Depression Symptoms, Celexa, Anxiety Attack, Panic Disorder, Manic Depression, Depression Treatment, Clinical Depression, Postpartum Depression, Anxiety Depression, Depression Information, Depression Medication, Depression And Anxiety, and Depression Help."

8. The domain name "lexipro.com" included advertisements related to depression including links to advertising by advertisers who bid on any of the related keyword phrases: Depression, Lexapro, Depression Symptoms, Celexa, Anxiety Attack, Panic Disorder, Manic Depression, Depression Treatment, Clinical Depression,

Postpartum Depression, Anxiety Depression, Depression Information, Depression Medication, Depression And Anxiety, and Depression Help.

9. In this particular instance, the search engine in question placed advertisements on the lexipro.com site based on advertisers who bid on the word "lexipro."

10. From May 23, 2007 until the domain name was shut down in August 2007, the domain name lexipro.com had 1,410 visitors with 1,243 verified clicks on advertised links.

11. Attached as Exhibit C is a page from the "lexipro.com" site, which shows the particular advertisers that were generated as a result of the bidding process on "lexipro", the keyword "depression" chosen by Mr. Nissen, and the related keywords generated from the Parked automated system.

Re: Parked.Com's Improper Use of the Domain Name "lexipro.com"

Dear Sir or Madame:

This firm is intellectual property and litigation counsel to Forest Laboratories, Inc. ("Forest"). As you may know, Forest manufactures, markets, and sells a variety of prescription medicines for a variety of conditions throughout the United States. It has come to our attention that Parked.Com ("Parked") has employed the domain name "lexipro.com" on its hosting servers and re-directed those interested in Forest's LEXAPRO drug to on-line pharmacies and to others who are not associated or sponsored by Forest. For the reasons discussed below, we demand that Parked immediately remove the domain name "lexipro.com" and any derivation or similar name from its hosting servers.

Forest has made uninterrupted and continuous use of the mark LEXAPRO since 2002 and owns a federal trademark registration for the mark for "pharmaceutical preparations, namely antidepressants" (Reg. No. 2,684,432). Forest filed an intent-to use application for the mark LEXAPRO on December 22, 2000, which means that Forest is entitled to presumptive use from that date forward. Forest's rights to the LEXAPRO mark are longstanding, strong and incontestable pursuant to 15 U.S.C. § 1065. Indeed, Forest's LEXAPRO mark has become "famous" and is therefore entitled to an elevated degree of protection.

Our research reveals that Parked has provided its services to Leif Nissen in connection with his improper use of "lexipro.com." We understand that Mr. Nissen has made no legitimate use of this site and has employed Parked to pay him for those who click on advertisements that Parked directs. This mutual commercial arrangement is entirely improper and is in violation of numerous state and federal laws because, inter alia, it causes consumer confusion in the marketplace and directs consumers to sites that are not only unauthorized by Forest, but who compete with Forest and are making unauthorized sales of LEXAPRO from foreign countries. Parked has obviously financially benefited from this arrangement at Forest's expense.

We have contacted Mr. Nissen and he has refused to cease his use of the "lexipro.com" domain name and has refused to direct Parked to do the same. This unauthorized use has left Forest with no option but to pursue its legal remedies as provided at law, including treble damages and attorney's fees. If Parked would like to resolve this matter without litigation, it must immediately remove "lexipro.com" from its servers and discontinue any relationship with Mr. Nissen in connection with that name. If we do not hear from you within five business days from the date of this letter, Forest will pursue all appropriate legal remedies.

Very truly yours,

Christopher Serbagi

Well, you've gotten parked.com <<http://parked.com>> to stop running ads on the site. Being that you're being so reasonable, maybe I'll sell it to a webmaster in Pakistan who will put a porn site on it. Let's start being reasonable here before I do something stupid. There are 10+ domain parking companies so we can keep going that route before I get so upset I sell it offshore if that's really the tactic you want to take.
